MISS BETTY MATTART WEDS EDWARD LUCAS

Betty Baldwin Mattart, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Y. Baldwin of Carmel Valley, was married to Edward A. Lucas, son of Mrs. Amelia Lucas of Pismo Beach, at Holman's Guest Ranch in Carmel Valley Wednesday morning at 9:00 a.m.

Mrs. Douglas Bradburn of Carmel Valley was the matron of honor and Mr. Steve Grossi, also of Carmel Valley, served as best man. Beautiful begonias, grown by the bride's father, and gladioli decorated the spacious lounge. A wedding breakfast was served from a horse-shoe table in the patio. The Reverend John Wright of Pacific Grove officiated at the ceremony.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

A much chastened little group gathered at the council meeting Wednesday night.

The matters that drew a little spirited reaction were the fourth, fifth and sixth items on the agenda. The first two were in regard to A. C. Bigham's controversial application for a liquor license. Official hearing on the described protest will be held September 18 at 2 o'clock. It will not be published.

The report of the Planning Commission recommended that the City Council adopt a zoning ordinance limiting the sale of liquor to an area excluding Bigham's proposed store site, which is within the present commercial zone. This ordinance number 117 will be legally enforced 30 days from its publication.

Mr. Peter Mosley spoke on the seriousness of the reduction of the personal property tax exemption. He suggested that the Council wait until after the election before acting on the question of raising the money to compensate for the figured 11 1/4% loss which Carmel could be expected to feel were this exemption to go into effect. He felt that the citizens of Carmel should be warned about reading persuasive material and bulletins for this reduction and should be helped in seeing the disadvantages and problems which would arise from this reduction.

Yesterday morning a new name was added to the business houses in Carmel. The former Lucky Boy Market on Ocean near San Carlos was purchased in July by Walt Pilot of Carmel. Since Mr. Pilot's purchase, and under the managership of LeEarl McCaman, the market has been completely renovated. A contest to name the new store was recently held and the name picked is Pilot Market. Some fifteen people suggested a variation of this name and they are urged to come into the market to receive their prizes. Mr. Pilot is seen above in front of his store, as a painter puts the new name over the entrance.

FLOWER SHOW WILL BE FEATURE OF COUNTY FAIR

The Monterey County Fair flower show will offer many opportunities for cash prizes to those who are interested in growing flowers. George V. Yates, director of the floriculture department, has announced.

Fourteen categories are open to the amateur gardener, including flower arrangement for senior and junior groups, potted plants of foliage, potted plants in bloom and cut flowers of all kinds.

The interest and cooperation shown by flower lovers and the professional nurserymen of this area have been of great help to Yates and his assistants, Mrs. Frank Wilkinson and Mrs. F. L. Knudsen, in completing arrangements for the flower show.

All prospective exhibitors are requested to obtain the premium list and entry blanks as soon as possible by telephoning the fair office (2-5863) or by writing to Post Office Box 1151, Monterey. Fred McCarger, secretary-manager, will forward them by return mail. Entries should be in the hands of the committee by September 18, in order that space may be arranged for all floral exhibits.

ADVANCE REPORTS INDICATE GREAT LAUGHTON SHOW

The advance reports on Charles Laughton's one-man show, which will be presented at the Pacific Grove High School Sunday evening, October 1, indicate that those who attend are in for a wonderful theatrical experience.

Laughton, who comes onto the stage with a load of books like a schoolboy's, quips his way through introductory humorous remarks and tosses off light, half-ironic and even macabre verse, limericks and fables. Then, suddenly, he is speaking the words of Shakespeare, Dickens and the Bible in an enthralling way that makes his one-man program a triumphant event. Whether he is proffering bizarre comedy or climaxing with the 139th Psalm, the Fiery Furnace from the Book of Daniel or the Lincoln Gettysburg Address, Laughton keeps whatever he does in the realm of wonder. In the more serious selections he is serene and dominant, and in the lighter moments, ingratiatingly erratic and changeable.

Laughton comes here under the auspices of the Town Hall Forum of the West and will be presented locally by Alice Seckels management. Reserved seats for the program are on sale in Carmel at the Browse Around Music Shop and in Monterey at Abinante's Music Shop.

MONTEREY COUNTY VOTE REGISTRATION IS STATE'S SECOND LOWEST

"Monterey County has the second lowest registration per capita in the State of California," says Mrs. William Arley Smith, who will be in charge of voters' registration next week for the Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters.

"Anyone who has moved, or who failed to vote in the last general election (1948), should register in order to have a voice in his government," Mrs. Smith points out.

The League will maintain a registration booth in the Bank of Carmel Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, September 11, 12 and 13. Wednesday is the last day of registration for the general election.

Booths will also be maintained at J. C. Penny & Company in Monterey, at the Seaside Market in Seaside, and at Holman's in Pacific Grove. Those serving as registrars are Miss Ruth Radcliff, Mrs. Everett Smith, Mrs. Winifred Bolm and Mrs. Paul Low.

"SHADOW AND SUBSTANCE" WILL BE SEASON'S LAST FOR GOLDEN BOUGH PLAYERS

Next weekend (Friday and Sunday) the Golden Bough Players will complete their summer season by a presentation of Paul Vincent Carroll's noted play of modern Ireland, "Shadow and Substance." A great success on Broadway, it received the Critics' Award as the best play of its season by a foreigner. Stark Young said of it, "A play so beautiful and wise, so tender and sensitive and moving, that it makes the business of theatergoing take on once more the quality of glowing adventure."

This genuinely distinguished play will be under the direction of Gabrielle Kuster, who for more than 20 years has been associated with her husband, Edward Kuster, here as well as in Hollywood and San Francisco, in the production of scores of outstanding contemporary plays.

The central characters of the drama will be enacted by Julie McCarthy (Brigid), Edward Kuster (the canon) and Said Riza (the schoolmaster). Supporting them, in colorful character roles, will be Gloria Rollin (Katy Cooney), Arthur Balasz (Francis Ignatius O'Connor), Judy Campbell (Thomasine Conannon), John Evans, Bill Woolsey and Tom Morley (village curates) and John J. Walsh and Verena Shaxon (townspeople).

Tickets will go on sale next Tuesday morning in the Golden Bough Court, Ocean Avenue opposite the Pine Inn. Reservations may be made by telephoning 7-6748.

SPREADING the NEWS...

By Howard Statham

A young matron was pushing her son in his baby-buggy along the street the other day, for the purpose of getting a little air and a few groceries for the evening meal, when a boy of nine or thereabouts pulled up alongside her on a bicycle and jumped off.

"I just learned how to ride a bicycle," he proudly informed her.

She told him that was nice.

"But there are two things I can't do yet," he went on to say. "I lose my balance and fall off every time I try to turn and I don't know how to put the brakes on yet, either. I have to jump off to stop."

Before he could explain just what was so difficult about putting the brakes on, the door of a nearby house opened and a little girl who was maybe a couple of years younger than the boy came tearing out.

"Hey!" she yelled furiously. "You took my bike! Just wait! I'll get my hands on you!"

Without a word, the boy jumped onto the bicycle again, sped down to the end of the block and disappeared around the corner, probably unaware in his excitement that he had executed one of the most difficult feats possible on a bicycle: namely, to make a turn without falling flat on your face.

A VERY TENSE SITUATION, past, present and future, was indicated by a boxed announcement that the San Francisco Chronicle carried on the front page of Tuesday's issue. Said the announcement: "Royce Brier took a holiday yesterday. This World Today will resume tomorrow."

MONTEREY COUNTY FAIR AND HORSE SHOW

Thursday, September 28, the opening day of the Monterey County Fair and Horse Show, will be known as "Fair-land" day, under the supervision of the Community Center Auxiliary of the Monterey Peninsula.

Mrs. Clifton D. Day, incoming president of the Auxiliary, has named Mrs. George Fuhrman as chairman. Mrs. Fuhrman will have charge of the selection of the king and queen of Fair-land.

First application in the king contest came from Mrs. Helen Burdett, 1128 Scholer Ave., Seaside, who wants to enter her six-months-old son, Albert Earl.

All babies under three years of age are eligible to enter the contest and they will be allowed to bring their fathers and mothers as their guests. Judging will start at 10:30 A.M., and will be done on the accredited judging system

Contrary to what you may have read in last week's SPECTATOR, grapefruit aren't selling for fifty cents a pound these days. After he read his ad in the last issue, Tony Kastro of the Carmel Drive-In Market called up to let us know that he wishes people would buy them for the price at which they were mistakenly advertised, but people just won't do it. What they were buying them for last week at the Drive-In Market was fifty cents a dozen, which requires quite a bit less coin than buying them on the other basis would.

DO YOU EVER FEEL that maybe life is getting a little too complex for you? Do you think living would have been simpler and less likely to give you ulcers a hundred years or more ago when people didn't go around killing each other on the highways and the possibility of wiping out a fairly good portion of a large city with one bomb probably never entered anyone's head? Well, maybe you're right.

Even in the food department, for instance, things are not the same as they were then--in case you hadn't noticed. The Napa Valley Gazette, a 4-page paper put out each year by the Beaulieu Vineyard people, has in its 1950 number a reprint of America's first printed menu. It's from Delmonico's, at 495 Pearl Street, New York, and it appeared on the scene in 1834. At that time it was possible to get a cup of tea or coffee for one cent, a pie for four cents (half a pie for two cents), pig's head and cabbage, fried fish, beefsteak, pork chops, pork and beans, or sausages for four cents, liver and bacon, roast beef, roast mutton, veal cutlet or chicken stew for five cents, and ham and eggs, hamburger steak or roast chicken for ten cents. for such contests.

Applications for the contest must be in by September 18, and must be filed on entry blanks furnished by the fair office or by the fair office or by members of the auxiliary.

HAWAIIAN FASHION SHOW FEATURES DESIGNS BY LYNN CONLAN

More than 175 guests gathered Saturday at tables on the terrace overlooking the Rancho Del Monte Country Club's swimming pool to watch a colorful Hawaiian fashion show featuring the unusual designs of Lynn Conlan, of Honolulu.

Mrs. Conlan, whose shop, the Crossroads Bazaar, is located in Honolulu, is well-known for her shell designs. Her shell print materials and shell jewelry have gained national recognition.

Thirty-seven costumes were shown during the afternoon. Included were swimming suits, cocktail dresses, afternoon dresses, hostess pajamas and native Hawaiian costumes in such materials as cotton, rayon, linen and pure silk.

The swim suits featured Mrs. Conlan's many shell designs, with patterns of sea fern, sea life, Tahitian shells, fishing scenes, and one interesting pattern of a Hawaiian lauau, or feast. Mrs. Conlan's various adaptations of the sarong were also shown. Of particular interest was the Hawaiian Muumu of Japanese Kabe Silk, featuring a red wisteria pattern.

The show was presented against a background of soft Hawaiian music, and guests were entertained by several Hawaiian dances by Maupuana Andrew, who danced in authentic island costume.

Commentators were Peggy Porter Marquard and Gerry Henderson. The models included LaVerne Storm, Sarah Hughes, Billie Funke, Pat Green and Connie Storm. Children modeling were Sherry Conlan, Lindy Conlan, Lee Conlan, Wendy Draper, Nancy Porter and Patsy Porter.

Once Upon a Time

By ALEXANDER VICTOR

A pleasant interruption in my boredom arrived simultaneously with Gustaf Lannestock the other day. He brought a copy of the New York Herald Tribune. In the magazine section was a story of the "Little Town That Wasn't There." This was written by Bernard Valery who seems to know more about Sweden than I do although he is not a Swede.

It seems that according to Valery's story there is a newspaper in Sweden called The Grönköping Veckoblad. This weekly newspaper is so charming and so humorous that tourists from all over the world change their itineraries and decide to visit Grönköping. But the little town isn't there. There is no such place.

Thirty-nine years ago the Veckoblad was started by Nils Hasselskog, a school teacher turned editor. It now has a circulation of over 50,000.

The purpose of Veckoblad is to hold the mirror up to nature, particularly Swedish nature. Stuffiness, affectation and provincialism are the chief objects of ridicule, but the mockery is rather gentle than cruel.

The main body of the text is satire. Recently the Veckoblad is featuring tourism. Europe's undignified scramble for dollar-laden Americans is made to order for Veckoblad's satire. "Welcome to Grönköping" shouted one of its recent headlines, in English, and the following text announced that Mayor Sjöquist of Grönköping was offering to let himself be interviewed by all comers for $5 a head.

Two other current subjects are "Atomic Fission" and the "Kinsey Report." Instead of figuring out new methods of destruction it has put the atom to constructive use. Already it has invented the Atom Energy-Driven Potato Picker.

The "Kinsey Report" brought out a regular rash of Veckoblad headlines. Among them:

"Petting gains ground in Grönköping."

And in somewhat contradictory vein... "Are Grönköping women emotionally undernourished?"

An old spinster, Sophie Liljedotter, really put Mr. Kinsey in his place. "In my time," she stated primly, "We did not write about such things in the newspapers, although I assure you that we had plenty of fun."

As a rule however, big worldly issues, like sex and the atom bomb, receive less space in Veckoblad than little local ones. The doings of the fire department are of perennial interest. Recently the paper featured an exchange between the department chief and an irate citizen.

FALL FASHION FLING

Harriet Duncan's "Fall Fashion Fling," presented Wednesday night, August 30, at the Highlands Inn, received enthusiastic praise from the many attending.

Among the new clothes shown were jackets, skirts and suits, "Merry-mixer" evening separates, short dinner dresses and tea dresses. One of the highlights of the show was a "fashion relapse," which took the audience (and the models) back into the Charleston era of flashy finery.

Do you ever have wanderlust? Well, I did recently. I have tried to control it in the past, but the other day I was unwittingly carried away on a magic carpet. Where? At the DAVID PRINCE TRAVEL AGENCY. How? By talking to Miss Peasley and by looking at the posters and at some of the many booklets in that cosmopolitan little office.

I learned some very interesting facts about travel agencies in general and about this particular one. First, the DAVID PRINCE TRAVEL AGENCY has all the facilities for giving personal attention and service that larger agencies cannot always give. It is completely equipped to take care of all travel at no extra cost. You pay exactly the same as though dealing with the carriers (steamships, airlines and railroads). Legally, this agency is entitled to charge for railroad tickets in some instances, but the DAVID PRINCE TRAVEL AGENCY doesn't because the management prefers to give up its fee or percentage as a service to its customers. Dave Prince and Margaret Peasley are bonded agents. They have correspondents in other countries who make hotel reservations and arrange for sightseeing tours as well as book tours.

If you want to sprout wings or float while you are sitting down, just drop in for a chat with Miss Peasley. If you want to look over the booklets for an inspiration, you'd better hurry, for when our lively-minded youngsters drop in and ask for them to help them with their geography lessons, it will be as though the locusts have gone through. Children never miss the boat, do they?

Has your mouth ever watered? Mine did when I stepped into the CINDERELLA SHOP on Ocean Avenue next to the Bank of Carmel and saw a few of the Claire McCardell clothes by Townley cut out of wonderful Miron woolens. There is a stunning red and white plaid dexterously combined with a tiny maroon and white check. It has a marvellously fitting and most interestingly-treated midriff band.

The second, a shirtmaker, Roman striped (black, violet, chartreuse), is crush-pleated, with Dolman sleeves.

The third, a small check in multiple colors (magenta, white, orange, brown, black), also crushed-pleated, is most practical, as it can be worn with any colored accessories. It has an inimitable collar treatment and from the back of the neck to the hem there is a series of crushed pleats that give it an effective, slightly monastic look. The fourth is this same dress, but this time done in topaz silk.

Among these mouth-watering jewel-tone dresses I saw an ensemble that made me even more excited. It is a navy blue strapless wool dress with jacket lined in Scotch plaid taffeta.

The beauty of these clothes is that they can take the wearer any place and all day long when necessary. These dresses are advertised in all the best magazines--Vogue, Town and Country, Life, Seventeen, Flair and so on and are exclusive with the CINDERELLA SHOP. Mrs. Dean, the owner of this shop, has shown advanced, accurate and wonderful taste in her understanding of the needs of the Monterey Peninsula woman and miss. Some of these clothes have not yet been advertised in these magazines and when they do come out they will have a long life ahead of them as far as style goes, for they are always in advance. With a person like Mrs. Dean to select for us, one need never worry about "going to the City" to select the clothes that are in the height of fashion.

I had a pleasant talk with the two ladies, Miss Sandall and Miss Dufour, who own and operate the CARMEL CRAFTS AND HOBBIES on the corner of San Carlos and 8th. They tell me that they have an enthusiastic clientele of children who purchase from them regularly and receive their guidance, but they are anxious to let grown-ups know that the hobby shop has lots of things for them to do. For example, building ship models for mantels is an exciting and practical hobby. Also railroad building! For someone not so mechanically minded there is a great selection of Dresden chinaware, copper craft and stencils (do-it-yourself) for fabrics and furniture. Shell jewelry has been done by children, but these ladies showed me some of the jewelry made by grown-ups. The pieces were exquisite and this craft can be quite a challenge to them. There is also leather craft and plate painting. Invalids confined to their beds or even semi-invalids sometimes tire of reading, and a quick glance in this shop would reveal many interesting do-it-yourself items that perhaps you could get a friend started on--or, why not do-it yourself? As a last word I wish to say that we mothers owe the CARMEL CRAFTS AND HOBBIES a lot for providing comfortable chairs and benches where our children can spend many SAFE and well-guided hours.

DEL MONTE KENNEL CLUB SHOW OCTOBER 15

The Del Monte Kennel Club's 25th annual show will be held at Pebble Beach Sunday, October 15, for the benefit of Peninsula Pets and the local branch of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The club, which is now open for membership, has had its original officers supplemented by a board of ten directors. The 1950 officers are S. F. D. Morse, president; Miss Helen Heavey, vice-president, and Miss Marion Kingsland, secretary. The new directors are Mrs. Elizabeth Boyer, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Huizenga, Lady Kinnoul, Miss Barbara McDonald, Derek Rayne, Dr. Ralph Weston and Mrs. F. S. Widdup.

The newly reorganized club plans to offer year-round activities including obedience training classes and instruction in conditioning and handling of dogs for the show ring, as well as lectures and movies pertaining to various aspects of dog care.

Benching is being acquired to take care of more than 500 dogs at the October 15 show, which will include obedience test trials and an exhibition of Army-trained dogs demonstrating the activities of the K-9 Corps in wartime, in addition to the usual breed competition. The judges' roster will include persons from New York, South Carolina, Texas and Oregon, many of whom have never judged in this locality before.

Local dog owners are encouraged to compete, and anyone who owns a pure-bred dog can enter it in the local classes. Contrary to popular belief, it is not necessary that the dog have papers. As the local classes are limited to dogs of this area, the competition is not extremely severe, nor are the owners expected to be experts in showing their dogs.

Every now and then the residents of the Monterey Peninsula, and Carmel in particular, find themselves being given the once-over by an outsider who comes to this area on vacation and who feels that the things which make the Peninsula "different" are worth a few lines in his home town newspaper.

One such person is Sydney J. Harris, whose column, "Strictly Personal," appears in the Chicago Daily News. Repeated below are two of his recent articles which gave Chicagoans a glimpse of Carmel and vicinity.

Monday, August 28, 1950:

PENINSULA REFUGE FOR INDIVIDUALISTS

Carmel, Calif.--From June to September, the fog relentlessly rolls in from the ocean. The air is moist and chilly. The fleas embarrassingly attack even the most respectable members of the community.

This is Carmel-by-the-Sea, a little town on the Monterey Peninsula, whose devoted inhabitants wouldn't trade it for all the sun in Southern California.

Although nothing of the art colony it was 15 years ago, Carmel still boasts (if that is the right word) the most heterogeneous population this side of Capri. It is also one of the least inhibited towns in America--in terms of decorum, not of decency.

There are as many berets and beards here as can be found in any Parisian left-bank cafe. The population is made up of artists, writers, retired Army and Navy officers (or their widows), wealthy Britons who find the climate here similar to that of Cornwall, and the usual California assortment of amiable screwballs.

SYD BUYS CAP

The friend with whom I am staying here has grown a sinister Fu-Manchu beard in the last two months. Me, I went out and bought an impressive commodore's cap, which I have always wanted to wear, but never had the nerve to back home.

A psychiatrist at a party last night explained that most of his trade comes from visitors, not residents. "The Carmelites," he said, "pretty much do as they want to, within certain limits. This freedom to act as individualistic, or eccentric, as they like is emotionally healthful for most of them."

In this sense, Carmel resembles an English more than an American community, and it is one reason the British find it so congenial. It is also vigorously opposed to the chrome-and-neon flamboyance so typical of Southern California. Robinson Jeffers, the poet, lives in complete seclusion here; and it is one of the few places in the country where no one would bother him.

For this attitude--and for an atmosphere which is generally conducive to creative work--the Carmelites are more than willing to endure the fog and the fleas during the summer months. It's a small price to pay, they feel, for getting rid of the canasta crowd.

Tuesday, August 29, 1950:

ARTISTIC GHOST TOWN FORECAST

Carmel, Calif.--This town was founded many years ago by a shrewd real estate promoter. For a couple of decades it was taken over by the artists. Now it is slowly, but perceptibly, reverting to the real estate promoters.

Carmel is evolving from an artists' colony to a progressive, middle class American town, with all the problems attendant upon this growth.

Each year, the newspaper and magazine hacks come out and write cutesie-wootsie articles about the "quaintness" of Carmel--and, indeed, the quaintness is its chief commercial stock-in-trade. But it is a carefully calculated quaintness, sponsored by the business association.

The shops along the main drag are winsomely Old World. Modern architecture is frowned upon by the merchants, who recognize that the fairy-tale decor attracts tourists. Even the store names are self-consciously arch, like "The Tuck Box."

A few of the artists who remain here are serious and able to support themselves (but barely) by their work alone. The others are either wealthy dilettantes or incompetents who supplement their painting with other activities.

HIGH LIVING COST

The cost of living is extraordinarily high for a small town, and thus many of the artists and writers have moved away in recent years--to Huckleberry Hill, or Big Sur, to more primitive communities down the coast.

It is one of the ironies of Carmel that many of the persons whose work first attracted attention to the town have now been forced to leave because Carmel's popularity has raised prices beyond their income level. In a few years, if the trend continues, old-timers predict Carmel may be an artistic ghost town.

Yet, even if this happens, the Monterey Peninsula (which has more kinds of flora than any other part of the world) will continue to appeal to the lovers of beauty and comparative seclusion. Those who would rather gaze into a stormy sea than a hot and cloudless sky, and who prefer rickety old fishing wharves to spanking new drive-in hamburger joints will keep heading here, come fog or high water.

PLAN FORMATION OF ALL SAINTS' CHURCH PARISH MEN'S CLUB

More than 50 men met for dinner Wednesday evening, August 30, in the All Saints' Church Parish House, Carmel, to form a parish men's club. A committee composed of Colonel Thomas G. Tousey (chairman), D. M. Kerr, Ronald Ogilvie and Arthur R. Wise was in charge of the dinner and program.

Colonel Tousey spoke briefly on the proposed aims and purposes of the club. Thomas L. Griffin, choirmaster, asked for the support of the men in creating a 30-voice choir for the new church and demonstrated their singing ability by leading them in song. The rector, the Rev. Alfred B. Seccombe, expressed his gratitude for the presence of the many who attended.

The program included a showing of the U.S. Army film, "Korea Today." An excellent meal was prepared and served by the food committee of the Women's Auxiliary.

The next meeting of the club will be held Wednesday, October 4, when the club will be officially organized. The following committees will make reports at that time: a committee on naming the club, composed of Ronald Ogilvie, John King and M. L. H. Reynolds; a committee on by-laws, composed of Jack Laughlin, Eben Whittlesey and D. M. Kerr, and a nominating committee composed of Arthur R. Wise, Bruce J. Bacon and Colonel W. B. Graham.

SUCCESSFUL SALES PROMOTION CONFERENCES TO BE HELD

The first of a series of "Successful Sales Promotion" conferences, designed to increase the selling power of a business through advertising, display and personal selling, will be held Tuesday evening, September 19, at Holman's Solarium in Pacific Grove, Harold L. Collwell, principal of the Pacific Grove Adult School, has announced.

The conferences will be under the direction of Earl H. Kieselhorst, business training specialist of the Bureau of Business Education of the California State Department of Education, who has had many years' experience as merchandise consultant to leading department stores and chain store organizations. He has also had close personal contact with thousands of retailers throughout northern California and is intimately acquainted with the selling problems facing retailers in today's market.

Anyone with anything to sell will find each of these conferences packed full of money-making and down-to-earth advertising and selling ideas, Collwell pointed out. Generous use will be made of entertaining and instructive visual aids such as colored animated cartoons, moving pictures and sound slide films.

Members of the group will be given opportunities to apply effective selling principles in personal demonstrations.

These conferences are being sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, the "Buy Peninsula" Committee of Merchants, the Monterey Peninsula Herald, the Pacific Grove Tribune, the Carmel Spectator, and the Pacific Grove Adult School.

WIFE OF POET ROBINSON JEFFERS DIES FRIDAY

Una Call Jeffers, wife of world-famous poet Robinson Jeffers, died Friday night, September 1, in a local hospital. She had been ill for some time.

Born in Mason, Michigan, on January 6, 1885, she was a graduate of the University of California, having received her degree at the university's Los Angeles campus. Formerly the wife of Edward Kuster, she and Jeffers were married in 1913 and the two of them settled in Carmel the following year, where they built their home, Tor House, one of the most widely-known of Carmel's landmarks.

Mrs. Jeffers was a member of the Carmel Music Society board of directors and a former chairman of the Carmel American Red Cross chapter.

She is survived by her husband; twin sons, Garth Jeffers, now with the forestry service near Yosemite, and Donan Jeffers of Carmel; two sisters, Mrs. Daisy Bartley and Mrs. Violet Hinkley of Mason, Michigan; two half-sisters, Mrs. Edith Allan of British Columbia and Mrs. Caroline Walls of Mason, Michigan, and five grandchildren.

Private funeral services were conducted Saturday at the T. A. Dorney Chapel, with inurnment following at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium.

ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S WHO IS IT?

FRED B. LEWIS, who keeps a lot of people in Carmel happy with the shine he puts on their shoes, is featured in this week's "Who Is It?" A resident of the Monterey Peninsula for more than 26 years, Fred's smiling face has become in the last six years as much a part of Carmel's Ocean Avenue scenery as many of its world-famous shops.

"I've been hanging around this world for a long time," says Fred. "Sixty-eight years, to be exact."

He was born August 7, 1882, in Denver, Colorado. When he was still too young to remember, he and his parents moved to Grand County, Kansas, where he attended school. In 1912, Fred came to California to see his mother, who had moved to Bakersfield two or three years previously. "I would have gone back right the next day if she hadn't been here," he says. As it was, his mother returned to Kansas but he remained in California. How long in Bakersfield? "Not long! At that time there was no vegetation there—only oil fields and people... and plenty of money!" But the town was too hot to hold him. From there he went to Hanford, Exeter, Lemoore and Turlock, for periods of two or three years in each place, where he worked some of the time as a cook and some of the time in the cleaning and pressing business. When he finally arrived on the Peninsula, he found that cleaning and pressing wasn't at that time what it is today, and for the next 15 years he was a house cleaner, getting everything spic and span from floor to ceiling.

Fred was married when he was 20 years old. After the death of his first wife, he married Mrs. Lucinda Blakney in 1920. The two of them now reside in Seaside. When asked about the future, Fred says he just wants to settle down and take things easy.

VICTOR

The firemen always practiced on Saturdays at 4 P.M. The citizen complained that since the fire hoses used up most of the town's water, he and other patrons of the Municipal Bath often found themselves stranded, fully soaped, under a dry shower. He suggested that the firemen practice some other day.

To this, the chief haughtily replied that fires, even fake ones, took precedence over bathing--and not to think so showed a lack of civic spirit.

All the jokes published in Grönköping Veckoblad do not emanate from its editors. A chap in Stockholm who had sickened of governmental red tape, asked permission from the Swedish Export License Bureau to export Grönköping's most famous bull, Brylanda Hero.

He wanted, he said, to ship the beast to Denmark to improve the quality of Danish stock--and that was as far as he expected the matter to go.

Imagine his surprise when he received an official permit to export the bull. As he stared at the thing a sudden doubt assailed him. Was it possible, he thought, that the bull, not to mention Grönköping, really existed?

Now my friend, Gustaf, has a great idea. He wants me to join him in a venture to suplicate the Swedish imaginary newspaper in this country of ours. He thinks that "The Whistle Stop Tribune" or the "Potato Valley News" might be good titles. As he proposed this, his eyes sparkled and he looked about ten years younger.

I said, "No, Gustaf, no plagiarism as far as I am concerned. But I tell you what I am willing to do. I will pool my resources with yours and we will go to Sweden and buy up land and build a town and call it Grönköping. With 39 years of advertising to start with and tourists aching to see the place, we should do very well."

IT'S TUNING THAT COUNTS

IN MUSIC OR IN CAR PERFORMANCE

Yes, even the finest fiddle must be tuned for best performance.

And for best performance, efficiency, economy your car must be tuned, too.

Your car is built to take it. But to keep it fit-as-a-fiddle and finely adjusted parts "humming in harmony," a periodic tune-up is essential.

We have the factory recommended instruments and trained mechanics to do the job right.

Keep your car humming the sweet music of motor efficiency. Drive in for your tune-up now.
